

The interview was conducted on July 7, 2010 at the home Mrs. Susan Tsu with Dr. Stanly Wang, who is one of the successful Chinese Americans and a long time friend of the late Dr. John B. Tsu and a active member of the Board of Directors of the Dr. John B. Tsu Foundation.

Writer began asking Dr. Stanly Wang how and when his relationship and friendship with Dr. John B. Tsu started and developed. Dr. Wang said that his relationship and friendship started through the mutual friend some 30 years ago at a hotel in the Bay area. In their first encounter, Dr. Wang said that the subjects the two of them centered on was the matter of importance of education. Dr. Tsu emphasized the importance, in particular, the two of them are from China where the making of the nation was still not in a full swing. Therefore, the matter of education was regarded as the most valuable tools for the advancement not only of ability of individuals but also that of the society in which one lives. Dr. Wang stated that the two of them shared the importance of education with the sense of wisdom.

Commenting on the strength of Dr. John B. Tsu, Dr. Wang stated that Dr. Tsu has the sense of creative thinking not only in his activities in political arena but also the compassion for others who are in need of the help. He also pointed out that Dr. Tsu possessed a clear positive vision which enabled him to accomplish for the goals he did set. Dr. Wang said that the style of Dr. Tsu in promoting and advancing the goals he set was very unique because he thought that "sense of Co-value" that Dr. Tsu possessed is important to achieve what he felt important in his endeavor of advancing the status of Asian Americans in the States. Dr. Wang regarded Dr. Tsu as truly an effective leader not only for Asian Americans but also for the nation.

Dr. Wang's assessment of Dr. Tsu is that he was humble enough to interact with the ordinary peoples which kept the Asian Coalition forces intact, in spite of the multiple ethnic backgrounds of peoples by which Asian Coalition forces are being formed. Dr. Wang noted that there were ups and down on the life of Dr. Tsu , in particular, in his political activities. Dr. Wang said, however, that Dr. Tsu was able to manage to keep the Asian Coalition forces intact because of no selfish motivation on his part and the tireless efforts through which he kept going in line with the mission he envisioned.

Dr. Wang touched on the subject of the re-unification of the Mainland China and Formosa, for which Dr. Tsu aspired. Dr. Wang pointed out that Dr. Tsu's broader mind made him to see the importance of the reunification of the two separated nations. Dr. Wang stated that although what Dr. Tsu was trying to do in 1994 became an issue within Bush Administration and the ranks and files of Republican Party, Dr. Tsu never give up the grand design he architected for the development of dialogues between the leadership of the two separated Chinas for the eventual unification of China.

Commenting on the quality of leadership for the advancement of the wellbeing of Asian Americans in the field of business and political affairs, Dr. Wang said that the current situation in Asian American communities are being divided, for which a strong leadership is required to make the movement of strengthening of Asian Americans communities for the wellbeing of Asian Americas in the States. Dr. Wang stress, therefore, that the youth of Asian Americas must move from "the Awareness to Actions" in terms of building the strong leadership if Asian Americans are going to be the mainstream of American political arena and also in business.

In responding to the questions the writer asked for Dr. Stanly, regarding the qualification of leadership for the furtherance of the mission that Dr. envisioned for, Dr. Wang said that there are at least three important points which are so crucial for the qualification of the leader; (1)able to spend the time enough to cope with the issue to come up with the better situation or condition, (2) No selfish motivation is bested, so that performance of leadership would be very objective and transparent, and (3) retains the sense of compassion for others. Dr. Wang said that it is now necessary for the youth of Asian Americans to do their best to foster such a leadership if the future of the wellbeing of Asian Americans is to be enhanced.

The writer thought that Dr. Sternly Wang has the in-depth insight into the quality of Dr. John B. Tsu as a strong and effective leaders who cared for others first before placing himself.
